Transforming lives through educational and cultural exchange.

The Hopkins-Nanjing Center turns 20.

IN 1986 when it opened its doors to students, the Hopkins-Nanjing Center was viewed as a bold experiment in Sino-American relations. It still is. The Center remains the leading program of its kind to train Chinese, American and third-country professionals in a variety of fields from diverse linguistic and cultural perspectives. Lives of alumni like you have been transformed in the process, and mutual understanding between countries grows student by student.

To keep pace with China's emergence as a global leader, the Hopkins-Nanjing Center is building on its reputation for excellence through an ongoing process of transformation. On June 22, 2007, the Center will celebrate its 20th anniversary with the dedication of a new master's program and a new state-of-the-art facility that more than doubles the size of the Center.

The transformation continues.

Please make plans to join current students, faculty and fellow alumni to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Center in Nanjing on June 22-23, 2007.

Masters of Arts in International Studies

Graduates will receive a single bilingual diploma bearing the seals and signatures of Nanjing University and Johns Hopkins University, the first degree of its kind that is fully accredited in both China and the United States.

Opening of a new facility

A new 100,000 square foot structure includes space to support an enhanced academic program, expanded residential capacity, and a conference facility for hosting international and domestic events.
