

A special message from the Dean of the Pamplin College of Business:

As a new academic year gets underway at Virginia Tech, I heartily thank you for your past giving and ask that you renew your support of the Pamplin College of Business.

Fall is always an exciting time in Blacksburg—I'm sure you remember it well. Thousands of eager new and returning students spill onto campus and downtown sidewalks. They flow through stately limestone buildings, crisscross the Drillfield and jam Lane Stadium on bright autumn days. And, of course, the abundant leaves on campus and surrounding Blacksburg turn vibrant shades of Hokie maroon and orange.

Today, I ask that you once again show your Hokie colors by making a tax-deductible gift to the College Annual Fund. Your renewed financial support will help ensure that current and future students of the Pamplin College of Business will receive an outstanding education and color the world in amazing new ways.

Please take a moment right now to complete the enclosed gift card and return it in the provided envelope. Or, if you prefer, make a gift online by visiting www.givingto.vt.edu.

Your gift, combined with the gifts of other loyal alumni, will make a dynamic impact on the education and lives of students—funding scholarships, study-abroad programs and much more.

On behalf of the students and faculty of the Pamplin College of Business, I thank you for showing your Hokie colors this fall. Your loyal and timely support will brighten the lives of new generations of students at Virginia Tech.

Gratefully,

Richard E. Sorensen, Ph.D.
Dean
Pamplin College of Business
